Conditions Governing Play for Championship Trophy
Presented by Daniel Chauncey

---

"Said trophy shall remain the property of the Metropolitan Golf Association until it shall have been won three times by the same player playing from or representing the same Club, when the trophy shall become the property of such Club. Until permanent possession of the trophy passes from the Association as above indicated, it shall be held each year in the custody of the Club whose representative shall have won a leg on the trophy at the last Championship. The name of the winning player and the Club which he represents shall be engraved on the trophy each year.

"The above conditions may be altered or modified only by the unanimous consent of every member of the Executive Committee of the Association; the intention being that said conditions may be changed or altered in future years if deemed advisable for any reason, with the unanimous consent of each and every member of the Executive Committee of the Association at the time."

Year Book : Nineteen NineConditions Governing Annual Competition

—FOR—

LESLEY CUP

SECTION I. The Lesley Cup shall be a perpetual cup, and shall be competed for annually by teams representing respectively the Metropolitan Golf Association, the Philadelphia Golf Association and the Massachusetts Golf Association. The Presidents of the three Associations shall act as Trustees of the Cup, and, as a Committee, shall have full power to make all arrangements for the annual Competition not inconsistent with these conditions, and full power to act on all points that may arise in connection with the Competition.

SECTION II. The Competition shall be held annually at a time and place to be decided by the Trustees. The first Competition shall take place in the Metropolitan district, the second in the Philadelphia district, and the third in the Massachusetts district; and thereafter the Competitions shall be held in rotation in the above order.

SECTION III. Each Association shall be represented by a team of ten players.

Each captain shall furnish in advance to the other two captains a list of twelve players, from which his team shall be chosen, it being understood that he may play any ten men in any morning or afternoon match in which his team is to take part. But no player starting in a morning or afternoon match can be withdrawn until it is completed.

Each player must be a bona fide resident of the district

HANDICAP COMMITTEE
METROPOLITAN GOLF ASSOCIATION.

DEAR SIR:

Please forward this immediately to the Chairman of your Club Handicap Committee.
This report must be returned not later than:

Mail it addressed to:

We remind you that there are many clubs in the Association and that we cannot hope to succeed in our work unless the reports are sent in promptly.

All handicaps returned on this report should be based on Par, and should be calculated in accordance with the system set forth on the next page. However clubs may arrive at handicaps for club events, it is evident that an association handicap list will be valueless unless all the clubs without exception make their returns according to the same method. Therefore, please follow all directions carefully.

[Additional directions, if any, may be written in here]

Yours truly,

M. G. A.,

DIRECTIONS FOR ASCERTAINING PAR.

Holes up to 200 yards in length, 3 is Par.
Holes from 201 to 250 yards inclusive,
3½ is Par.
Holes from 251 to 375 yards inclusive,
4 is Par.
Holes from 376 to 425 yards inclusive,
4½ is Par.

Holes from 426 to 510 yards inclusive,
5 is Par.
Holes from 511 to 600 yards inclusive,
5½ is Par.
Holes from 601 to 650 yards inclusive,
6 is Par.

The above figures are arbitrary, except that due allowance should be made for any peculiarity in the configuration of the ground or for unusual conditions. For example, a bunker guarding a putting green on a hole 230 yards long (with a local rule permitting the ball to be lifted) would make the hole par 4. A 375 yard hole up a steep hill would be a par of 4½ or 5. A 450 yard hole down hill might be a par 4. But, except in some such case, the par depends upon the length of the hole. If on any hole the par is more or less than the official par, state the reason under "Remarks." Each hole should be measured from centre of tee to centre of green, following the surface of the ground.

III. GENERAL REMARKS.

Give here a statement as to the general nature and condition of your links; and add any other information which you think may be of use to this committee.

IV CALKINS SYSTEM FOR CALCULATING HANDICAPS BASED ON PAR.

"The principal feature of this system is that not only is the good player handicapped because he is a good player, but the bad player is also handicapped because he is a bad player. The reason is this: The object of handicapping is to put all players on the same level, and if an allowance of a certain number of strokes is to be made to the less skillful player because he cannot play as well, some allowance ought to be made to the more skillful player because he cannot improve as much. The old method of handicapping, in all cases on the exact difference between the Par for the links and the average of a player's three best scores, takes into consideration only the advantage held by the good player, namely, his superior skill. It overlooks the advantage held by the bad player, namely, a greater possibility of improvement. Theoretically a club handicap list should be so made up that each player has as good a chance to win as any other, but no better, whenever a competition is held. But, as handicaps cannot be readjusted daily, it is evident that the chances will not really be equalized unless some measure is taken of relative probabilities of improvement in play. It is fairly well proved by actual results in handicap events, that the scratch player and the player with a low handicap has not, under the old methods of handicapping, as good a chance to win as the player with a high handicap. This system tends to make the chances of all players more nearly equal."

(Form of Handicap Report—Concluded.)

IN APPLYING THE SYSTEM, FOLLOW THESE DIRECTIONS:

(1) The first thing to do is to ascertain each player's Best Score Average. This does not mean his average game, but his average best game. No player should have any chance to win a handicap event, except when playing in his best form. For example, a scratch man is sometimes off his game, playing perhaps six or eight strokes above his true form. But it is evident that a handicap list will be worse than useless if it attempts to make any allowance for the tendency—common to all players—to fall off, at one time or another, from true form. If such an allowance were to be made it would be imperative to provide machinery for the automatic reduction of the handicap of a player upon his sudden and unexpected arrival at his real form. For the same reason a club handicapper should never raise a player's handicap, until he proves by constant competition through the whole or greater part of a season that his play is permanently inferior to what it was and not that he is only temporarily off his game.

The Best Score Average means a player's average best game. If, for example, the Par of your links is 72, and a player made last season a 75, a 76 and a 77, his best score average would be 76. The same would be true if he also made 72 once, since an exceptionally low score, not duplicated, may be disregarded. In general, this Best Score Average is obtained by taking the average of a player's best three scores.

(2) We suggest that you mail at once reply-postals to your members, asking them to state their five best scores, in competition and in practice rounds, during the past season. This is necessary if you have not preserved your club records; and even if you have, it is advisable, since it will give you practice-round scores. We suggest this form of request: "Members of this club desiring M. G. A. ratings will please report promptly on the reply card their five best scores during the past season, stating whether the scores were made in competition or during practice rounds." If you have a player's five best scores, you can average the three best, disregarding an exceptional score, if any.

(3) If you get no information as to a player's record during the past season, but know something about him from previous seasons, you are perhaps justified in calculating his Best Score Average from your general knowledge as to his game, though it is well to cut off a few strokes in order to be on the safe side. You should use unusual caution in such a case.

(4) If you know nothing whatever about a player, you should not give him a handicap. No one has any inherent right to a handicap. All players, theoretically, should start at scratch; the burden of proof is always on the player to show that he is entitled to a handicap. The chief cause of bad and unfair handicapping is the very general custom of starting a new member with a high handicap—often the limit—and allowing him to come down at his own convenience, picking up a few prizes on the way. We submit that you should allot no handicaps which you do not know to be safe. It is much better to leave such players off your list; if they want ratings, they can obtain them by furnishing you with data from which to compute them.

(5) You are sometimes justified in taking other things into consideration, such as a man's age. With a young player who has been coming on fast, it is sometimes well to reduce his Best Score Average arbitrarily a stroke or two below that which is produced by your average of his three best scores. In the case of a man beyond middle age who long ago attained a degree of skill which he has never been able to improve upon, it is fair, after calculating his actual Best Score Average, to add a stroke or two, because his "chance to improve" is slight.

But in general the Best Score Average is obtained by taking the average of the three best scores; and then, if in any doubt as to a player's playing form, a stroke or two should be deducted before deciding finally upon the proper Best Score Average.

(6) Having made, on separate sheets of paper, an alphabetical list of the members to whom you are to allot handicaps, and having written after each player's name his Best Score Average as calculated from your records and other data, and in accordance with directions 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 above, a glance at the Handicap Table will show, in each case, the proper handicap. Look at the Table for the Best Score Average, and then look for the handicap in the vertical column headed by the Par which corresponds with the Par for your links. (The Table gives handicaps up to 27, which clubs will find useful for club events.) The names should then be transferred to this Report, each group to consist of players who have the same handicap.

(7) If you have a nine-hole links, calculate your Best Score Averages on the basis of a double round, and multiply the Par of your links by two, in order to arrive at an eighteen-hole Par which will enable you to use the Handicap Table.

NOTE—This system can be used by clubs in handicapping their players for club events. If it is preferred in such events, to handicap on the basis of Bogey the above Table can be used unless Bogey is more than 76; in such case the proper table can easily be drawn up from above model. Whenever a player improves his game at his home club, his Best Score Average will come down, and a glance at the Table will give his proper reduced handicap. To get the best results, the club handicap committees should keep a card index showing the records of players in stroke competitions. This will enable the committee to keep a line on each player's Best Score Average. Club Committees are also advised to adopt a rule penalizing players who do not return cards in stroke competitions. An effective penalty is to bar such players from playing in the next club event.
